A Technology Firm “with added value” Opens in Monroeville

Monroeville, PA – Open just over three months, SDLC Partners Principal Scott Barnyak said that the company is growing faster than anticipated.

“We’ve had more business opportunity come our way than we’ve initially expected,” said Barnyak. “This primarily occurred through referrals from our existing relationships...every client and potential employee we’ve spoken to has been extremely receptive of the vision we’ve painted and the passion we have for our company.”

Barnyak is referring to the company that he and fellow Principal Christy Maruca founded – SDLC Partners, L.P.

With over 30 years of combined IT industry experience, the principals at SDLC Partners have created a consultancy that works with organizations, helping them implement technology solutions to address business needs.

“We believe we take a more strategic approach than many of our competitors when working with a client,” said Maruca. “We try to gain an in-depth understanding of our client’s business issues and work with them to provide solutions tailored to their specific needs.”

Based on their experience in the local marketplace, Barnyak said that he and Maruca felt there was space in the marketplace for a company that brought a strategic approach to its clients as well as made a positive impact on the community.

SDLC is also interested in the retention of those interested in the field of computer science. A long range goal of theirs is to create a framework to provide clients a cost effective way of accomplishing work while also keeping college students in the Pittsburgh area.

“We are in the process of creating a model for clients to use college students and re-trained individuals enabling them to get work done in a cost-effective manner while simultaneously encouraging these individuals to stay in the Pittsburgh area,” said Barnyak. “Later we’d like to expand the idea and work with high school students to foster their interest in our field.”

Presently, SDLC's service offerings include:

- SOA execution, web services and (EAI) execution
- Portal/dashboard strategy and development
- Custom development and support for web based and legacy applications
- End user reporting and business analytics
- Business analysis and requirements gathering
- QA testing
- In source, outsource and local source or co-source delivery models

And, while growth is important to SDLC, it's equally important that they continue to maintain a “customer focused” approach according to Maruca.

“One of our goals is to grow the company at a pace where we can continue to maintain our unique approach with clients,” said Maruca.

Together, Barnyak and Maruca have close to three decades of experience in the IT industry. Barnyak is a graduate of Carnegie Mellon University and Maruca went to the Institute of Computer Management.
