Monroeville Technology Firm One of 10 Finalists for “Rising Star” Award

Monroeville, PA – One of the area’s fastest growing technology firms, SDLC Partners of Monroeville, is one of 10 finalists for Pittsburgh Technology Council's Tech 50 “Rising Star” Award.

Rising Star candidates are the future of southwestern Pennsylvania. Finalists in this category offer innovative products or unique services and show promise of becoming major economic forces.

In just a couple short years, SDLC Partners has grown from a two-person start-up to now employing close to 85 employees.

SDLC’s services are focused on process, information management, and management services including business process management, process optimization, business intelligence and web based reporting, PMO strategy, project management, tools mentoring, full life cycle development, and managed maintenance outsourcing.

“My partners and I are very excited and honored to be recognized by the Pittsburgh Technology Council again this year in the Rising Star Category,” said Scott Barnyak, one of the principal partners and founders of SDLC. “We believe we have built a unique business model and culture, and this nomination is made possible by the hard work and commitment of each of our employees over the last three years.”

The Pittsburgh Technology Council's Tech 50 Award banquet will be held Thursday, Oct. 11 at the Carnegie Music Hall in Oakland.
